Enjoy your Fox Day!

Autism Spectrum Discussion
Some Rollins students are on the autism spectrum. What can we, their professors, do to support and assist these students? Dosia Paclawskyj, a former faculty member at the Kennedy Krieger Institute and the Johns Hopkins University, is a psychologist specializing in autism. She has offered to help us understand this complex disorder so that you can confidently engage these students and maximize their learning.

CAJ Institute for Effective Teaching and Instructional Design & Technology team are offering a week-long workshop for faculty interested in creating a new course or redesigning an existing one.

The CRI workshop will help participants apply current teaching & learning theory in their own course design. There will be an emphasis on practical ways to engage students and improve their learning while meeting learning outcomes. We will explore elements of Universal Design and how it might impact how we teach.

Applications due on April 30. The application is available through the following Qualtrics link: https://rollins.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_eOkYYULjoBGIKAI
