Book Clubs are a great way to learn from and with colleagues. This fall you can choose from two books and join your colleagues in discussions about your readings. Both books were recommended by your colleagues and if you would like to lead the discussion group on one of the dates and times, let Deb Wellman know and she will be happy to schedule you. Sign up to participate by emailing Deb at dwellman@rollins.edu by Sept. 2 so she can order the right number of books through CAJET.

Lang, J. M. (2016). Small Teaching: Everyday lessons from the science of learning. San Francisco, CA: Jossey-Bass.

“Cognitive psychologists, neuroscientists, and biologists all have produced a revealing body of research over the past several decades on how human beings learn, but often translating these findings into the classroom is overwhelming for busy instructors. Small Teaching bridges the gap between research and practice by providing a fully developed strategy for making deliberate, structured, and incremental steps towards tuning into how your students are hardwired to learn.” (Excerpted from front cover flap.)

Berg, M. & Seeber, B. K. (2016). The Slow Professor: Challenging the culture of speed in the academy. Toronto: University of Toronto Press.

“If there is one sector of society that should be cultivating deep thought in itself and others, it is academia. Yet the corporatization of the contemporary university has sped up the clock, demanding increased speed and efficiency from faculty regardless of the consequences for education and scholarship.” (Excerpted from front cover flap.)

On each date Book clubs will meet at three times in Warren 108. You choose the one that best fits your busy day. Please RSVP to Deb so there will be enough food and space.
