Interview Tip:

Behavioral Interview Prompts

Employers often ask questions about how you responded to specific situations. For example:

- Tell me about a time when you experienced a conflict while working on a team.
- Describe a time when you had to work well under pressure.
- Give me an example of a time when you showed initiative and took the lead.
- Tell me about a time when you made a mistake, and how you handled it.

S.T.A.R. Method

You can use STAR as a framework to structure your response to behavioral interview questions.

- Describe the context and background for a situation that's relevant to the question.
- Explain the task that needed to be completed. What was the goal?
- Outline specific actions you took. How did you exhibit transferable skills?
- Share the results of your actions. What was the outcome? What did you learn?

MARKET YOUR EXPERIENCE

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOUR FRATERNITY OR SORORITY EXPERIENCE

The Fraternity and Sorority Life (FSL) experience provides students with opportunities to live in a chapter house, establish strong friendships, make connections with faculty and staff, and contribute to the community through leadership and service. Many of the skills developed through involvement with FSL translate directly to work environments across industries. Use the examples in this guide to discuss these transferable skills on resumes, cover letters, and interviews.

TRANSFERABLE SKILLS

Leadership If you held an office or served as a committee chair, you exhibited leadership through your duties. Employers seek candidates who can exercise high levels of responsibility in an organization. The experiences you gained while holding FSL positions reflect greatly on your potential as an employee.

Service FSL members are known for providing help in the community. Each sorority and fraternity sponsors a community organization. Describe your service efforts to collaboration with community members as well as demonstrate dedication to a cause greater than yourself.

Organization & Time Management You juggle student organization activities with schoolwork and other obligations by being organized. Employers value time management because it conveys discipline and motivation.

Teamwork Emphasize the communication and coordination skills you developed while completing team projects. Successful collaboration between co-workers, offices, and even organizations is essential to success in the workplace.

Because each student's experience is different, use this as a general guide to help you articulate your unique experience.
